WordPress 3.6 Release Candidate — 4 days ago

The first release candidate for WordPress 3.6 is now available. We hope to ship WordPress 3.6 in a couple weeks. But to do that, we really need your help! If you haven't tested 3.6 yet, there's no time like the present. (But please: not on a live production site, unless you're feeling especially adventurous.) Think [...]

Annual WordPress Survey & WCSF — 8 days ago

It's time for our third annual user and developer survey! If you're a WordPress user, developer, or business, we want your feedback. Just like previous years, we'll share the data at the upcoming WordCamp San Francisco (WCSF). Results will also be sent to each survey respondent. It only takes a few minutes to fill out [...]

WordPress 3.5.2 Maintenance and Security Release — 26 days ago

WordPress 3.5.2 is now available. This is the second maintenance release of 3.5, fixing 12 bugs. This is a security release for all previous versions and we strongly encourage you to update your sites immediately. The WordPress security team resolved seven security issues, and this release also contains some additional security hardening. The security fixes included: [...]

Everything is smoother, faster, and more seamless.

WordPress is web software you can use to create a beautiful website or blog. We like to say that WordPress is both free and priceless at the same time.

The core software is built by hundreds of community volunteers, and when you're ready for more there are thousands of plugins and themes available to transform your site into almost anything you can imagine. Over 60 million people have chosen WordPress to power the place on the web they call "home" — we'd love you to join the family.

The screenshot shows the WordPress Trac website in a web browser. The browser's address bar displays the URL `http://core.trac.wordpress.org/`. The page features the WordPress logo and the word "WORDPRESS" in a large, blue, serif font. Below the logo, there is a navigation bar with links for "Login", "Preferences", "Help/Guide", and "About Trac". A secondary navigation bar includes "Wiki", "Timeline", "Roadmap", "Browse Source", "View Tickets", "Search", and "Ticket Graph". The "Wiki" tab is currently selected. The main content area is titled "WordPress Trac" and contains several paragraphs of text. The first paragraph explains that Trac is used to follow the development of WordPress and provides links to the "Timeline section", an "RSS feed", and a "mailing list". The second paragraph mentions that bug reports are kept on Trac and provides a link to "head on over". The third paragraph states that users can login to the site using their WordPress.org credentials or sign up at "the forums". The fourth paragraph suggests browsing the source code or checking out WordPress using Subversion. Below this, there are sections for "Security Issues", "Contributing", and "The Life of a Ticket". The "Security Issues" section advises contacting security at wordpress.org if a security issue is not addressed in a released version. The "Contributing" section lists ways to contribute, such as testing a patch, grabbing a bug, or using test automation tools. The "The Life of a Ticket" section provides a link to the WordPress Codex for reporting bugs and understanding keywords. At the bottom of the page, there is a link to "configure your email address".

WordPress Trac

Trac is the place to follow along with the development of WordPress. You can track changes in the Timeline section of this site. There is also an RSS feed and a mailing list for those interested.

Bugs reports are also kept on Trac. If you are looking to submit a bug report, please head on over.

You may login to this site using your WordPress.org username and password. If you don't already have one, sign up at the forums.

You can browse the source here, but you probably want to check out WordPress using Subversion.

Security Issues

If you have encountered a security issue that isn't addressed in a released version of WordPress, please contact security at wordpress.org with detailed information.

Contributing

There are many ways to contribute to WordPress. If you want to get started quickly, test a patch, or grab a bug and see if you can reproduce the problem it describes. Don't miss the test automation tools.

If you have an idea for a feature, but not the ability to code it yourself, share your idea at WordPress Ideas.

The Life of a Ticket

Reporting Bugs in the WordPress Codex tells how to report a bug obviously, what all the keywords we use in Trac mean, and more.

Media Wireframes

Over the past week or so, I've worked closely with @lessbloat (Dave), @nacin, and @markjaquith to create a set of media workflows that will hopefully serve as a foundation and guide for the improvements in this release. (This is the fifth version of these wireframes — you can see the first four on Dave's site.)

The usual disclaimers: None of this is final. These are wireframes, so please focus your feedback on the experience, not the aesthetics. As for scope, we are focusing our changes on improving the modal experience. This focuses on the overall picture; not all of this will necessarily make it into the final release.

So, without further ado...

Index » Traduction française » Chaîne "Show all dates"

24 août 2012, 12:23

Bonjour,

une suggestion pour la traduction FR de WordPress:

Quand on navigue dans l'interface admin et qu'on se trouve sur le listing des Posts, ou des Pages (wp-admin/edit.php?post_type=page), on a un menu déroulant intitulé "Afficher toutes les dates".

Cette chaîne est un peu trop longue et le s final est tronqué (du moins sous MacOSX, dans Chrome / Firefox).

Ne pourrait-on pas simplifier et traduire
"Show all dates" par "Toutes les dates" ?

Etant donné que le menu est suivi par le bouton "Filtrer", le contexte me paraît suffisamment clair.

Alternativement, on pourrait traduire par "Voir toutes les dates" - on y gagnerait pour le moins quelques caractères s'afficheraient.

Réponse:

Salut,

Tu peux modifier cette chaîne par toi-même dans le fichier fr_FR.po de ton installation WordPress. Ce fichier se trouve dans un dossier nommé "languages". 😊

Il te faudra un logiciel tel que PoEdit pour pouvoir l'ouvrir toutefois.

I have a proposal for improving the French translation strings so that it fits the available space of the dropdown. See more information here: <http://www.wordpress-fr.net/support/sujet-71742-chaine-show-all-dates-afficher-toutes-dates>

I think the box should rather adjust to lengths of strings, if possible.

ms-studio 1:15 pm on August 30, 2012

Permalink | Reply

Agreed, that would be better, other languages would also benefit from that!

I see that the hardcoded width is defined in /wp-admin/css/wp-admin.dev.css
lines 822 – 824:

`.tablenav select[name="m"] {
width: 155px;

If we replace with: '155px' with 'auto', the dropdown will adapt.

Description

In the admin interface, when we have a list view of posts, such as in /wp-admin/edit.php, there is a dropdown menu with the string "Show all dates". This dropdown menu has a fixed width of 155 pixels, defined by the following CSS rule:

/wp-admin/css/wp-admin.dev.css (lines 822 – 824):

.tablenav select[name="m"] {
width: 155px;

This fixed width is problematic for languages where the string is longer, such as in French ("Afficher toutes les dates"). Here, 155px is just slightly too short, and the final "s" is missing. It would look better if the width would be flexible, like this:

We should probably change both the "m" and "cat" dropdowns to have a max-width of probably 200px, and otherwise let them be as narrow as the language allows.

21752.2.patch removes fixed width from the dropdowns and adds max-width.

Screenshot: 21752.2.after.png. Tested in Firefox 15, Chrome 21, IE 7, IE 8, Opera 12.

IE 8 has two bugs:

- If fixed width is not set, longer strings overlap with the arrow: 21752.2.ie8-bug-1.png.
- Options that are wider than the select's set width are cropped: 21752.2.ie8-bug-2.png (currently happens in trunk).

The patch addresses both.

Explication du problème.

The QuickPress publishing area, that is prominently visible on the main Dashboard, label fields. They are actually just wide enough to hold the English label text ("Title",

In some localized versions of WP, those labels are too short to hold the complete strings, so they either overlap or break into several lines. The attachments "quickpress-labels-de.png" and "quickpress-labels-fr.png" show how bad it looks in German and French (under MacOSX, in FF and Webkit).

Now every language could override the width with a custom CSS rule, but I think there is a much better solution: we could use a prompt text inside the text field, like we already do for the "Title" field on the normal post/page editor. This would have two benefits:

- The whole string will fit in, no matter how long it is.
- The editing area gets wider, which makes it more convenient to write a post.

In my first mockup (quickpress-improved-01.png), you can see this principle applied both for the "Title" and the "Tags" field. My feeling is that the main edit box is self-explanatory, since we do the same on the post/page editor. But this should certainly be discussed with some UX experts.

I made a second mockup (quickpress-improved-02.png) where I added the category dropdown. I think that this would make the QuickPress box much more like @Sergey : indeed, the reasoning behind this proposal is that it should work for any language without specific tuning.

An important thing to remember is that users are confronted with the dashboard each time they log into WP - even if they don't use the QuickPress widget, it's very important that everything looks clean and precise. Any imperfection here will have a negative impact for a large number of users.

nacin — 3 months ago

Regarding the implementation: I would use the placeholder attribute, and keep the existing JavaScript as a fallback. See <http://caniuse.com/#feat=input-placeholder>
